January 29, 2024

Abstract

This article shows how crypto-safe random passphrases can be generated in a Unix-like run-time environment, following the Diceware Method and using its dictionary, utilizing Perl 5 as the command language and the service Random.org as a source of crypto-safe random numbers.

1 Summary of the Diceware Method

The Diceware Method is described at The Diceware Passphrase Home Page. In a nutshell, it consists of:

1. Roll five dice. String the numbers together. For example: 6 4 3 2 6
2. Look up the word associated with these numbers on the Diceware word list. For example:
64326 wok
3. Do this a total of five times. After 2014, do this six times. After 2030, do this seven times. After 2050, do this eight times.
4. String the words together as a passphrase. For example: cleft cam synod lacy yr
wok
5. Optionally, add a special character.

2 Program outline

A Perl program will begin by initializing the run-time environment. Following this, it will:

- load the Diceware word list;
- retrieve sufficient random integers from Random.org; and,
- generate and type the passphrases, following the Diceware Method.

```
6a <dwrpg 6a>≡ 6b>
#! /usr/bin/perl
<boilerplate 1 25c>
<boilerplate 2 25d>
<boilerplate 3 25e>
<dwrpg initialize run-time environment 7>
<dwrpg load word list 15>
<dwrpg retrieve random integers 18a>
<dwrpg generate and type passphrases 21a>
```

This code is written to file `dwrpg`.

To enable the program to work without a network connection, the Diceware word list can be incorporated into the program itself, in the form of a here-is document.

```
6b <dwrpg 6a>+≡ <6a>
<dwrpg dictionary data 28>
```

3 Run-time initialization

Run-time initialization sets pragmas, declares internal and external variables, and reads user-supplied parameters.

$$\begin{aligned} 7 \quad \langle \textit{dwrpg initialize run-time environment 7} \rangle \equiv & \quad (6a) \\ & \langle \textit{dwrpg pragmas 8} \rangle \\ & \langle \textit{dwrpg dependencies 9} \rangle \\ & \langle \textit{dwrpg declare specials 17} \rangle \\ & \langle \textit{dwrpg command processing 10a} \rangle \end{aligned}$$

4 Pragmas

The run-time environment needs to know what command language interpreter to use. The interpreter, in turn, needs to know the language variant. Here the language version is stipulated to be 5.34.

```
8 <dwrg pragmas 8>≡ (7)
   use 5.34.0 ;
   use strict ;
   use warnings ;
   use Encode qw(encode decode) ;
```

5 Dependencies

5.1 Data::Dumper

`dwrpg` expects standard module `Data::Dumper`. The module is used only by debugging statements when they print data structures. See the `-d` switch, which manipulates the `$debugging` flag.

```
9 <dwrpg dependencies 9>≡ (7)
  use Data::Dumper ;

5.2 HTTP::Tiny

`dwrpg` depends on `HTTP::Tiny`. On Slackware 15.0, `HTTP::Tiny` is preinstalled, part of the core library. At one time, Cygwin did not preinstall it. I do not know the Cygwin situation now. This, in turn, required, in order to support https (SSL) URLs:

1. `IO::Socket::SSL`
2. `Net::SSLLeay` (automatically installs as prerequisite of SSL)

These were installed by:

```
$ perl -MCPAN -e shell
cpan shell -- CPAN exploration and modules installation (v1.9402) Enter 'h' for help.
cpan[1]> install IO::Socket::SSL
```

When prompted, do not run “external” tests.

These in turn required, on Cygwin, the following packages:

1. `libcrypt-devel`
2. `openssl-devel`
3. `gcc-g++`

6 Command processing

`dwrpg` accepts some run-time options on the command line. Command line processing is done in two steps. First, declare the options and their default values. Second, read the command line and substitute operator-supplied values.

6.1 Command line default values

`$nwords` – number of words to choose from the dictionary and incorporate into the passphrase. Following the recommendation in the DiceWare manual, this is year dependent. I love handling cases that may never come up in my lifetime.

```
10a <dwrpg command processing 10a>≡ (7) 10b>
    my ( undef, undef, undef, undef, undef, $year, undef, undef, undef ) = localtime() ;
    $year += 1900 ;
    my $nwords
        = $year < 2014 ? 5
        : $year < 2030 ? 6
        : $year < 2050 ? 7
        : 8
```

`$npasswords` – number of passphrases to generate.

```
10b <dwrpg command processing 10a>+≡ (7) <10a 10c>
    my $npasswords = 1 ;
```

`$unsafe` – whether to use the unsafe number generator.

```
10c <dwrpg command processing 10a>+≡ (7) <10b 10d>
    my $unsafe = 0 ;
```

`$debugging` – whether to type debugging information at runtime.

```
10d <dwrpg command processing 10a>+≡ (7) <10c 10e>
    my $debugging = 0 ;
```

`$wordlist` – what DiceWare wordlist to use.

```
10e <dwrpg command processing 10a>+≡ (7) <10d 11a>
    my $wordlist = 'en' ;
```

`$minlength` – minimum password length.

```
11a <dwrpg command processing 10a>+≡ (7) <10e 11b>
    my $minlength = 17 ;
```

`$ascii` – whether to emit ASCII only.

```
11b <dwrpg command processing 10a>+≡ (7) <11a 11c>
    my $ascii = 0 ;
```

6.2 Command line parsing

And now the command line is parsed. Command parsing result is typed to the operator, if debugging. A naked block is used to limit scope of temporary variables.

```
11c <dwrpg command processing 10a>+≡ (7) <11b>
    {
        <dwrpg usage 12a>
        while ( @ARGV )
        {
            <dwrpg set nwords 12b>
            <dwrpg set unsafe 12c>
            <dwrpg set file 12d>
            <dwrpg set npasswords 13a>
            <dwrpg set debugging 13b>
            <dwrpg set wordlist 13c>
            <dwrpg set minlength 14a> <dwrpg set ascii 14b> else { die $usage ; }
        }
    }
    $debugging >= 1
    and warn "DEBUG nwords=$nwords unsafe=$unsafe npasswords=$npasswords debugging=$debugging wordlist=$wordlist"
```

The string `$usage` is typed to the operator when there is a command line syntax error.

```
12a <dwrpg usage 12a>≡ (11c)
my $usage = "$0: usage: dwrpg [-number] [-u] [-f pathname] [-n npasswords] [-w wordlist] [-m length] [
. "\t-number - number representing words per passphrase (default: $nwords)\n"
. "\t-u - use unsafe built-in generator, not random.org (default: unset)\n"
. "\t-f pathname - word list (default: built-in Reinhold English list)\n"
. "\t-n npasswords - number of passwords to generate (default: $npasswords)\n"
. "\t-d - add 1 to debugging level (default: $debugging)\n"
. "\t-w wordlist - name of the Diceware wordlist to use (default: $wordlist)\n"
. "\t-m length - minimum length of passwords (default: $minlength)\n"
. "\t-A - emit ASCII characters only (default: unset)\n"

12b <dwrpg set nwords 12b>≡ (11c)
if ( $ARGV[0] =~ /^-([0-9]+)$/ ) { $nwords = $1 ; shift ; }

12c <dwrpg set unsafe 12c>≡ (11c) elseif ( $ARGV[0] =~ /^-u$/ ) { $unsafe = 1 ; shift ; }

12d <dwrpg set file 12d>≡ (11c)
elseif ( $ARGV[0] =~ /-f$/ )
{
    shift ;
    if ( @ARGV )
    {
        close DATA ;
        open DATA , '<' , $ARGV[0] or die "$!\n" ;
        shift ;
    }
    else { die $usage ; }
}
```

```

13a <dwrpg set npasswords 13a>≡ (11c)
    elif ( $ARGV[0] =~ /^-n$/ )
    {
        shift ;
        if ( @ARGV )
        {
            if ( $ARGV[0] =~ /^[0-9]+$/ )
            {
                $npasswords = $ARGV[0] ;
                shift ;
            }
            else { die $usage ; }
        }
        else { die $usage ; }
    }

```

```

13b <dwrpg set debugging 13b>≡ (11c) elif ( $ARGV[0] =~ /^-d$/ ) { $debugging++ ; shift ; }

```

Note that the name of the wordlist can be anything. Failure to name an existing wordlist is dealt with when parsing the lists.

```

13c <dwrpg set wordlist 13c>≡ (11c)
    elif ( $ARGV[0] =~ /^-w$/ )
    {
        shift ;
        if ( @ARGV )
        {
            $wordlist = $ARGV[0] ;
            shift ;
        }
        else { die $usage ; }
    }

```

```
14a <dwrg set minlength 14a>≡ (11c)
  elif ( $ARGV[0] =~ /^-m/ )
  {
    shift ;
    if ( @ARGV )
    {
      if ( $ARGV[0] =~ /^[0-9]+$/ )
      {
        $minlength = $ARGV[0] ;
        shift ;
      }
      else { die $usage ; }
    }
    else { die $usage ; }
  }
}
```

```
14b <dwrg set ascii 14b>≡ (11c)
  elif ( $ARGV[0] =~ /^-A$/ ) { $ascii = 1 ; shift ; }

7 Load word list

A word list takes the form of an associative array `dictionary`. Each key is a string that represents five die-rolls. For example, `12345` represents die-rolls 1, 2, 3, 4, 5. The associated value is a string representing a word. For example, key `12345` retrieves value `apathy`.

The program supports more than one word list. Each word list consists of a two-character language name, such as “`en`”, followed by a newline, followed by the word list itself, followed by a period character, followed by a newline. The data file is scanned for the word list named by the operator. When found, that list is loaded. When not found, a fatal error message is typed.

```
15 <dwrg load word list 15>≡ (6a) 16a>
   my %dictionary ;
```

Here the raw word list is loaded from filehandle DATA to the array.

```
16a <dwrrpg load word list 15>+≡ (6a) <15 16b> for ( ; ; )
  {
    $_ = decode( 'UTF-8' , <DATA> ) ;
    die "$0: wordlist not found: $wordlist\n" unless $_ ;
    if ( /^$wordlist$/ )
    {
      warn "$0: reading wordlist: $wordlist\n" ;
      for ( ; ; )
      {
        $_ = decode( 'UTF-8' , <DATA> ) ;
        die "$0: eof reading wordlist\n" unless $_ ;
        last if /^[.]+$ / ;
        die "$0: parse error reading wordlist\n"
            unless /^( [^\t]+ ) [ \t ] + ( [^\t\r\n]+ ) / ;
        $dictionary{$1} = $2 ;
      }
      last ;
    }
    else
    {
      chomp ;
      warn "$0: slewing past wordlist: $_\n" ;
      for ( ; ; )
      {
        $_ = decode( 'UTF-8' , <DATA> ) ;
        die "$0: eof slewing wordlist\n" unless $_ ;
        last if /^\.$/ ;
      }
      next ;
    }
  }
  die "$0: unexpected number of words\n" unless keys %dictionary == 7776 ;
```

The result is typed to the operator, if debugging at level 2 or greater.

```
16b <dwrrpg load word list 15>+≡ (6a) <16a>
  WORD_LIST_LOADED:
  $debugging >= 2
  and warn "DEBUG " . Dumper \%dictionary ;
```

8 Special characters

The Diceware method recognizes 36 special characters. Here we define a 6 x 6 array `special`. Each terminal array element is a one-character string. Each character is one of the 36 special characters.

```
17 <dwrg declare specials 17>≡ (7)
   my @special ;
   {
       no warnings 'qw' ;
       @special = (
           [ qw@~ ! # $ % ^@ ],
           [ qw@& * ( ) - =@ ],
           [ qw@+ [ ] \ { }@ ],
           [ qw@: ; " ' < >@ ],
           [ qw@? / 0 1 2 3@ ],
           [ qw@4 5 6 7 8 9@ ]
       ) ;
   }
```

9 Random number sources

A source of random numbers is central to the Diceware method. Two sources are made available to the operator. Both return a string of five digits whose values range from 1 to 6.

```
18a <dwrpg retrieve random integers 18a>≡ (6a)
    <dwrpg randomunsafe5 18b>
    <dwrpg randomorg5 18c>
```

9.1 Built-in

The function `randomunsafe5` uses the built-in `rand` function. The result is not crypto-safe.

```
18b <dwrpg randomunsafe5 18b>≡ (18a)
    sub randomunsafe5
    {
        join '' , map { 1 + int rand 6 } 1 .. 5 ;
    }

9.2 random.org

The function `randomorg5` contacts the online service `random.org`. The connection is managed using `HTTP::Tiny`. The result is crypto-safe. A cache, `randomorg5cache`, is used to avoid many calls to `random.org`.

Declare the cache, the `HTTP::Tiny` dependency, and the function. The function fills the cache if needed. Then it then pops a dictionary key off the cache and returns it.

```
18c <dwrpg randomorg5 18c>≡ (18a)
    my @randomorg5cache ;
    use HTTP::Tiny ;
    sub randomorg5
    {
        <dwrpg randomorg5 fillcache 19a> join '' , splice @randomorg5cache , 0 , 5 ;
    }
```

The cache avoids many calls to random.org. When the cache is empty, load it.

```
19a <dwrpg randomorg5 fillcache 19a>≡ (18c)
    if ( @randomorg5cache == 0 )
    {
        <dwrpg randomorg5 sizocache 19b>
        <dwrpg randomorg5 send 19d>
        <dwrpg randomorg5 receive 19e>
        <dwrpg randomorg5 save 20>
    }
```

Choose a cache size. One possibility is enough for 50 passwords.

The factor 50 should make refreshing the cache a rare occurrence. It was derived from the observation that of 20 times the script generated an order-six password, the longest run was 29 passwords generated before one passed the easy-to-read step.

```
19b <dwrpg randomorg5 sizocache 19b>≡ (19a) 19c>
    my $cachesize = 50 * $nwords * 5 ;
```

The other possibility is just to take as many as we actually can. 10,000 die rolls is the current limit allowed by random.org.

```
19c <dwrpg randomorg5 sizocache 19b>+≡ (19a) <19b> $cachesize = 10000 ;
```

Connect to random.org and ask for numbers.

```
19d <dwrpg randomorg5 send 19d>≡ (19a) my $http = HTTP::Tiny->new ;
    my $url = join ''
        , 'https://www.random.org/integers/?num='
        , $cachesize
        , '&min=1&max=6&col='
        , $cachesize
        , '&base=10&format=plain&rnd=new'
    my $response = $http->get( $url ) ;
```

Receive the response and do error checking. When debugging level is 3 or greater, type the response.

```
19e <dwrpg randomorg5 receive 19e>≡ (19a) $debugging >= 3 and warn "DEBUG response=" . Dumper $response ; if( ! $response->{success} ) { die $response->{content} ; }
```

Load the cache from the response. When debugging level is 2 or greater, type the cache.

```
20 <dwrg randomorg5 save 20>≡ (19a)
   @randomorg5cache = split /\s+/, $response->{content} ;
   $debugging >= 2 and warn "DEBUG randomorg5cache=" . Dumper \@randomorg5cache ;
```

The API key here was probably for `random.org` but I don't have notes. It's not used in the code.

10.2 Special character replacement

Second, perform the Diceware special character “extra security” measure. Replace one letter with a special character or digit. Diceware actually calls for this character to be inserted, not replaced. But it’s easier to remember the passphrase this way. The cost is a little entropy.

```
22a <dwrrpg generate each 21b>+≡ (21a) <21b 22b>
  my $tospecial = int rand scalar @passphrase ;
  {
    my $char = int rand length $passphrase[$tospecial] ;
    my $third = int rand 6 ;
    my $fourth = int rand 6 ;
    my $special = $special[$fourth][$third] ;
    $debugging >= 1 and warn "DEBUG"
    . " tospecial=$tospecial"
    . " char=$char"
    . " third=$third"
    . " fourth=$fourth"
    . " special=$special" ;
    substr( $passphrase[$tospecial], $char, 1 ) = $special ;
    $debugging >= 1 and warn "DEBUG"
    . encode( 'UTF-8' , " passphrase=@passphrase" ) ;
  }
```

10.3 Capitalization

Third, capitalize one of the words. To avoid a conflict between this and the special character measure, don’t do this in the word we just changed. A naked block is used to limit the scope of temporary variables.

```
22b <dwrrpg generate each 21b>+≡ (21a) <22a 23>
  {
    my $tocapitalized ;
    do
    {
      $tocapitalized = int rand scalar @passphrase ;
    }
    until $tocapitalized != $tospecial ;
    $passphrase[$tocapitalized] = ucfirst $passphrase[$tocapitalized] ;
  }
```

10.4 Concatenation into passphrase

Now build the passphrase from the generated words.

```
23 <dwrg generate each 21b>+≡ (21a) <22b
    $passphrase = join ' ' , @passphrase ;
```

11 makefile: build process

12 Future work

1. Use a better estimate of how many passwords will be needed to size the cache.
2. Use crypto-safe numbers for special character replacement and capitalization.
3. Support older versions of Perl.

13 Revision history

29 January 2024. Support ASCII-only passwords using an optional argument.

29 January 2024. Support a minimum password length, given as an option on the argument list and defaulting to 17.

29 June 2023. Support multiple languages, starting with `en` and `es`.

13 March 2023. Update source to use Noweb.

19 April 2022. Reluctantly use `$_ = 0` instead of `$_ = 1` to support modern Perl 5 installs. Since I must touch the code anyway, add a debugging feature.

6 November 2018. Performance is terrible, especially when run in a loop to generate multiple passwords. This is because of the delay waiting for each five-digit number. Modified to request and cache multiple five-digit numbers.

12 October 2018. Initial release. Edward McGuire <metaed@gmail.com>
